Annual press conference: Bürostner – we bring that "wohnfühlen" home away from home feel to life on the road

Bürostner is consistently extending its portfolio, and will be offering various new model ranges, including electric vehicles, with the "wohnfühlen" home away from home feel that is typical for the brand, from the new season onwards. In addition, several caravans have been given facelifts. Besides these new models and facelifts, it is also forging ahead in the digitalisation area with the My Bürostner app, and the "Bürostner Individual" label extends the company's service portfolio.

Düsseldorf. The extension of the Bürostner product spectrum is progressing further. The spectacular highlight at this year's Caravan Salon in Düsseldorf will be Bürostner's innovative motorhome Lyseo Gallery TD. A mere year after the prototype presentation, Bürostner will be exhibiting this streamlined semi-integrated low-profile motorhome, which features a second living level created with the aid of an inflatable alcove, as a serial production model.

Other new motorhomes

In the comfort class, the new additions to the model ranges consist primarily of the Limited Edition model Bürostner Limited and the popular Bürostner Lyseo TD. Furthermore, besides the Lyseo Gallery TD, another new model range will be added to the Bürostner Lyseo family. The coachbuilt integrated Bürostner Lyseo I interprets the #wohnfühlen home away from home feel that is typical for the brand in the classic way and closes the gap in its mid-price range segment offer.

The new compact FORD-based Bürostner Lineo T crosses the boundaries and combines the well-designed habitation space of a slimline semi-integrated low-profile vehicle (external width 220cm) with the agility of an ordinary van - the perfect Bürostner comfort class entry level model. At the Salon, it will be exhibited at the FORD stand.

New campervan models

The new convertible campervan Bürstner Playa, based on a Renault Trafic, and the Renault Master-based Delfin campervan are milestones of the company's strategy in the area of "new compact, urban vehicles".

Both the Bürstner Playa as well as the Bürstner Delfin will be available as a Limited Edition model, the LIMITED, to begin with. Each will be available with one popular layout that already includes all of the features that make the vehicles even more comfortable and cosy on holiday, as well as convenient to use as everyday transport.

From now onwards, the professional customisation of Bürstner campervans will be offered under the label "Bürstner Individual". Buyers of certain vehicles can order their customised model directly ex-factory. They can choose from a portfolio of exclusive product elements: Special decals in a range of designs, customised lettering, optional extras such as alloy wheels or a front grille; even individual requirements can be met.

The Bürstner Lineo Electric will be shown with a view to the future and electric transport. Together with the Bürstner Eliseo CNG exhibited in 2021, it proves once again that Bürstner is ready for the alternative drive systems of the future. The campervan, based on the Bürstner Lineo model range, is 100% electric, and has a range of up to 317km. Whether it will go into serial production is currently being considered and depends largely on the customer demand.

New in the caravan area

The most important changes are the caravan model range Premio and Premio Plus facelifts, as well as a Bürstner app for monitoring the Averso Plus vehicles.

My Bürstner app - smart vehicle monitoring and control

Another highlight in Bürstner's premium class is the new My Bürstner app, which makes living in a Bürstner even smarter. Two different-level versions have been realised: In the premium-class caravan Bürstner Averso Plus, it shows all of the caravan's various charge and fill levels. The new app also provides information about other important details such as the noseweight on the tow bar or the tyre pressure. All owners of the premium-class motorhome Bürstner Elegance can also additionally control comfort aspects such as the heating, the air conditioning system or the lighting via the app.

All new models and other new products that will be launched at the Salon will be on show at Bürstner's new exhibition area in Hall 6, Stand D03.
